Dear [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] met with [REDACTED] yesterday but I am not aware of what they discussed. If Phil or anyone had accompanied [REDACTED] I would have joined the Group but it turned out to be a private conversation. Your note and attachment arrived in time for me to give it to [REDACTED] so it served as a point of reference for their discussion.

Please tell Helen that her letter arrived with the information on hotel rates and I appreciate it very much, and of course [REDACTED] does too. As I mentioned in my letter, it is highly unlikely that he will stay over in [REDACTED] this summer if he can make plans to by-pass that stop. Originally he asked for this information and that's why I was most anxious to have it available for him. In the event that he changes his plans and wants a hotel reservation in [REDACTED] I will advise you as soon as possible.

I received the photos you requested but I am considering what action to take to get them to you since there are about 150 separate shots. I will cull through these and send you some -- and you can give me guidance from there.

I sent a note some time ago to [REDACTED] requesting that he change his address with his College Alumni Organization. Another piece of mail addressed to his former business address has arrived and there is a certain amount of anxiety that the change of address be corrected promptly. Would you ask [REDACTED] to make sure that the Alumni Organization has been so advised and have him further certify to us for the record when this action was taken.

Once again, I assure you that there are no travel plans for [REDACTED] at this point and I will keep you informed if I should even hear a rumor of same.

Best to all.
